

A Constitutional Challenge: Right to Counsel in Civil Cases?

Monday, September 18, 2006
Northeastern University School of Law
Room 202 Knowles Center
4:00 - 5:30 p.m.

Panelists include:

Martha Davis - Professor of Law, Northeastern University

David Hall - Professor of Law, Northeastern University

Russell Engler - Professor of Law & Director of Clinical Programs, New England School of Law

Moderated by James Rowan - Professor of Law & Associate Dean for Experiential and Community-based Education and Research, Northeastern University

This Constitution Day program will include a discussion of the constitutional context for the Civil Gideon movement, the social science data demonstrating the importance of counsel in civil cases, the international law relevant to appointed counsel, and the roles that NUSL faculty, graduates and students are playing in the Civil Gideon movement.

For more information: www.slw.neu.edu